

Thank you for trying out the PARTY [DOT] WORLD
Print and Play!

The card designs have been simplified in order to spare your printer ink the suffering of making full-color cards.

Pages 2 and 3 are Rules.

Print page 19 onto the back of pages 4 to 8.

Print page 20 onto the back of pages 9 to 13.

Print page 21 onto the back of pages 14 to 18.

Alternatively, use different colored card sleeves to differentiate the three decks.

PARTY [DOT] WORLD RULES

CONCEPT

The multiverse is a big place, which means that there's a lot of options for what to do on a Saturday night. As a wannabe party planner on the popular multiverse website Party dot World, your goal is to throw the best parties so you can post about it and make a name for yourself online. It's up to you to attract the best guests to your parties each week by choosing hosts, locations, and party attractions that attract the VIP of the evening, even if it means sabotaging the competition. Each VIP you get means you can brag on your blog, and getting the most VIPs makes you the most popular blogger on Party dot World!

HOW TO PLAY

Each round, a player acts as the VIP, and the rest of the players act as Party Planners. The Party Planners choose hosts, locations, and attractions in order to convince the VIP player that their party is the best. They can also sabotage other players to hamper their plans.

SETUP

Shuffle the Character, Location, and Attraction decks. (Sabotage cards are mixed into these decks already.) Each player draws three cards from each deck. Choose a player to be the first VIP. Play rotates clockwise.

GAMEPLAY (SUMMARY)

1. DRAW: All players draw so they have 3 cards from each deck.
2. VIP: The judge player of the round flips over a character and chooses who that character will be. That character is the VIP of the round.
3. MAKE PARTY: All players put down a Character (party host), Location (party location), and Attraction (draw to the party) face down.
4. REVEAL PARTY: In turns, each player reveals their cards and explains why their party is best for the VIP.
5. SABOTAGE: Players may play one Sabotage after all players reveal.
6. CHOOSE WINNER: The judge chooses which player wins the VIP.
7. REPEAT: Repeat until a player has won 2 VIP cards (5+ players) or 3 VIP cards (2-4 players). Only check for a winner once all players have had a chance to be the VIP.

CARD TYPES

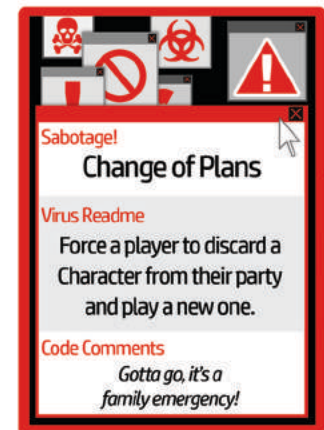

Blue: Characters
The host of the party.
Choose a character from fiction or real life that fits the description.

Green: Locations
The location of the party.
It can be a generic place or a place from fiction or reality.

Yellow: Attractions
The main draw to your party.
Your party will have general party supplies by default.

Red: Sabotages
Mixed into the other three decks.
Play them to affect the other players' parties.

GAME INFO

Players: 2-8
Time: 30mins - 1hr
Age: 12+

PARTY [DOT] WORLD RULES

GAMEPLAY (ELABORATED)

The player acting as the VIP flips over the top card of the Character deck to reveal a character type. (Flip again if it's a Sabotage.) That player chooses a person or character from any work or real life that fulfils the card's type. That character becomes the VIP for the round. Players must convince the VIP player that their party is the one that the character would be most likely to attend.

The other players each place a Character, Location, and Attraction card face down in front of them. Starting at the player to the left of the VIP and going clockwise, players flip over their three cards and read them aloud, choosing a character that fulfils their Character card. They can then make comments about how their party would work.

Once all players reveal their parties, players can make arguments to the VIP about why their party is superior to the others. During this time, players may also play one Sabotage card from their hand to affect other player's parties. Sabotages take effect immediately after being played. (The exception to this is Anti-Bullying, which prevents the last Sabotage from happening.)

The VIP removes parties from their options until either one is chosen or they reach a tie.

In the event of a tie, remaining players add an additional card to their party. If two Character cards are in play, the characters act as co-hosts. If two Locations are in play, the locations are connected by a portal or mixed into a hybrid location; the choice is up to the player. If two Attractions are in play, the party has multiple supplies. Once all new cards are added, players are open to using a Sabotage card again if they haven't already. The VIP then chooses from the options.

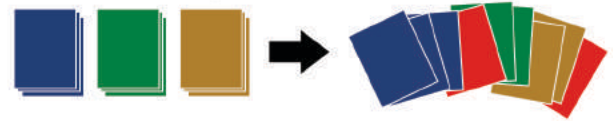

The winner of a round keeps the Character card that acted as the VIP that round. Players draw cards to replenish their hands to three cards of each type.

In a two player game, no player acts as the VIP, and both have a discussion on which party they place would be the best option for the character.

VISUAL GAMEPLAY

1. DRAW: Draw so you have 3 from each deck

2. VIP: Judge of round chooses VIP

3. MAKE PARTY: Players make a party for the VIP

4. REVEAL PARTY: Players reveal and explain parties

5. SABOTAGE: Play one Sabotage if desired

6. CHOOSE WINNER: Judge chooses winner of VIP

7. REPEAT: Repeat until game end

GAME END AND VICTORY

The game ends when a player has won 2 VIP cards (for games with 5 players or more) or 3 VIP cards (for games with 4 players or less). Only check for a winner once all players have had a chance to be the VIP.

If more than one player has reached the VIP win number once all players have been VIP once, play a final round with the winning players as Party Planners and the rest of the players acting as a single VIP.
